

One of the limitations of traditional MISL transactions is in accounting for inter-company transactions and when goods legally change hands. For some organizations this raises serious legal, regulatory and accounting issues. But FOB (Free-on-Board) Shipping for MISL changes all of that.

FOB Shipping for MISL solves this problem simply and effectively: When goods leave the supplying site (Plant 2) an inventory ship transaction (IS) is created. This transaction is offset by a miscellaneous receipt (RC) to the InterSite warehouse (li). To complete the transaction a transfer warehouse (TW) from the InterSite warehouse (li) to the demand site (Plant 1).
